

Canadian Community Digital Archives

Serving Communities and Libraries across Canada

Data Repro Com Ltd. is pleased to announce the launch of Canadian Community Digital Archives.

Canadian Community Digital Archives is a service that will allow libraries, historical associations and other community based organizations to cost effectively digitize their content and make it available online to the public.

The Canadian Community Digital Archives web site is simple to use. It will allow users to browse the entire collection by location or title. The entire collection is also full text searchable. In addition users will be able to set up an individual profile at no charge that will allow them to store newspaper clippings that are of interest to them.

What truly differentiates Canadian Community Digital Archives from other online hosting services is our unique pricing model. CCDA will DIGITIZE YOUR CONTENT AT NO CHARGE. As a library you would only be responsible for the annual storage and online access cost that are at competitive industry rates.

CCDA Value Proposition:

- EASY TO USE WEB SITE
- DIGITIZE YOUR COLLECTION FOR FREE
- NO SCANNING FEES
- NO IMPORT FEES
- NO PROJECT MANAGEMENT FEES
- NO HIDDEN FEES
- LOW ANNUAL ONLINE STORAGE COST
